WORLD CLOCKS MAY SOON SKIP A SECOND AS EARTH SPINS FASTER*

lasses

World clocks may soon skip a second as Earth spins faster/पृथ्वी की गति बढ़ने के कारण विश्व की घड़ियाँ जल्द ही एक सेकंड पीछे हो सकती हैं

- For the first time in history, timekeepers around the world may have to consider subtracting a second from our clocks in a few years, because the planet is spinning a little faster than before.
- Clocks may need to skip a second - called a "negative leap second" - around 2029, according to a study in the journal Nature
- For thousands of years, the Earth has been generally slowing down, with the rate varying from period to period
- The slowdown is mainly due to the effect of tides, which are caused by the pull of the moon

Positive Leap Second

- Two versions of time - astronomical and atomic - were created, but they did not correspond to each other. Every day, astronomical time lagged behind atomic time by fractions of seconds.
- These daily fractions of seconds added up to whole seconds every few years.
- Starting in 1972, international timekeepers decided to add a "leap second" in June or December for astronomical time or solar time or Earth's rotational time (UT1) to catch up with atomic time, called Coordinated Universal Time (UTC).
- For example, a day with a leap second would proceed as follows: 23:59:58, 23:59:59, 23:59:60, and then 00:00:00.
- Between 1972 and 2016, 27 separate leap seconds were added as Earth slowed down.

Negative Leap Second

- But the pace of the Earth has started speeding up
- Earth is speeding up because its hot liquid core - "a big ball of molten fluid" - acts unpredictably, with swirls and flows that vary
- the core has been triggering an acceleration for about fifty years, but the rapid melting of ice at the poles since 1990 has masked this effect.
- Hypothetically, if Earth's rotation were to speed up significantly, a negative leap second might be needed, which would involve skipping a second. For example, the sequence would go from 23:59:58 directly to 00:00:00, skipping 23:59:59.
- No negative leap seconds have been implemented so far

- The plan was to remove this leap second for the first time in 2026, a change they called the "Negative leap second."
- According to the recent study, the accelerating melt of ice from Antarctica and Greenland has acted like a brake, slowing the rotation back down, and potentially delaying the need for a "negative leap second" adjustment until 2029 or later.
